

How to use the 2010 Census Block PL-94 Spreadsheet

This spreadsheet was created to help you find out more information about the population living in Chula Vista. It is intended to be used with the 2010 Census Block Population Map. You can reference the spreadsheet to help determine demographics about who lives in your Community of Interest, or in creating District suggestions to present to the Commission. Once the Commission has Draft Districting Plan (map or maps), you may wonder how the districts' population would change if a district line were to move by a couple of blocks. The spreadsheet along with the Block Population Map will help you with this.

To use the spreadsheet:

- On the map, locate the area you'd like more information about. The census has designated most city blocks as census blocks. Block Groups are made up of Census Blocks. Note the Block Group number and Census Tract number that contain the block of interest. These numbers are labeled in red and black, respectively.
- Find the Census Tract number in the second column of the spreadsheet labeled TRACT.
- Find the Block Group number in the third column of the spreadsheet labeled BLOCK GROUP.
- Find your block based on its population (as labeled on the map) in the fifth column of the spreadsheet labeled POP. Please note that the Census Block numbers are not listed on the map.

For more information on the data listed in this spreadsheet, please see the codebook provided. Happy mapping!
